For Your Information

By Guillermo P. Bautista

If an elected official can be dictated to by a person like Mr. B. J. Dolan, they should not be in the position they are in now. And I mean the whole City Council of Seaside from the Mayor on down. Immediately after the new council had been seated and the replacement for Joe Cota in the Redevelopment Agency was appointed, Mr. Dolan told the press, "I will not support Mr. Bautista for reappointment in the Redevelopment Agency."

So, with Dolan's dictation the council finally made it official that my reappointment would not be made.

I had already told many of my close associates that regardless of whether or not I was reappointed, I already made up my mind to tender my resignation. Another reason besides Mr. Dolan, why I have decided to resign is that in the two previous Agency meetings a "BABY SITTER" from the members of the City Council was in attendance with us. In the past, this has never been done.

With this in mind, the following information may help to inform the public why Mr. Dolan was against my reappointment.

At the time the re-call petition was circulated, Mr. Dolan called me and said he had enough signatures on the petitions to recall the City Council. He asked me to declare myself as an active member in the coming recall election. My answer was negative for the reason that I did not want to oppose anyone on the present city council that I supported in the past election.

His second call was received by a member of my family. He said that he would publicly expose me for reasons I do not know.

At this point a Mr. Glen Olea came into the picture.

In reference to the property that I purchased at the Del Monte Heighrs project, I paid the advertised amount and no questions were raised at that time.

Why should I now be criticized for building a hew home for my family and bettering the look of the city in general? For the information of those interested parties, a complete record of the property I purchased is in order at the Agency's Office.

The final straw was when Mr. Merrield Beck, chairman of the Redevelopment Agency, called me and asked me to come to his ome and talk about this matter.

In short, when I arrived at his home he asked me to, if I wished to be reappointed to the agency, write a letter to every member of the City Council saying that I would support them in any matter they choose. This "request" was an indication to me that Mr. Beck was acting as an "errand boy" for the council. In reply I told him that no Bautista will ever be intimidated by any persons under any circumstances and certainly not by the City Council in general.

Lastly, I wish to say to all of my firends and supporters that come April 1972, you will be hearing more of Mr. Guillermo P. Bautista as a prospective candidate for one of the elective offices.

Special Notice

Due to the holiday on September 9, the regularly scheduled meeting of the Seaside Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors will be held on September 16 at 7:30 a.m. at the Hofbrau in Seaside.

Campaign Head Is Announced

Mr. Ray E. Harden will head the campaign to fight children's lung diseases, according to John W. Cutter, President of the Norther California Chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

Mr. Harden, who is the President of the Monterey County Unit, will lead local volunteers in raising funds during Children-s Lung Disease Month. The campaign is scheduled for September for funds to support patient services, scientific research and education.

A recent upsurge of interest in genetic diseases has revealed the possibility of being able, in the future, to prevent or control genetic defects through laboratory and clinical methods. This, coupled with a Federal appropriation of $10 million for Genetic Task Force within the National Institutes of Health, adds impetus to this year's drive.

Cystic Fibrosis thus far is an incurable disease, inherited when both parents have a biochemical defect. Many patients now are living beyond their teens and into adulthood because of improved therapy. That same kind of therapy is relieving and often curing children suffering from chronic bronchitis, asthma with lung damage, bronchiectasis, the condition sometimes called childhood emphyma and other respiratory afflictions.

"Most people don't realize how many children have serious breathing problems," said Mr. Harden.

Big Sunday Afternoon Show Planned

Billed as "Jazz Today and Tomorrow", the Sunday afternoon concert (September 19) of this year's Monterey Jazz Festival will feature a series of young student performers along with some of the most highly-respected names in jazz.

The Festival, scheduled for the weekend of September 17, 18, 19, is dedicating the Sunday afternoon concert to the concept of youth, according to founder and general manager, Jimmy Lyons.

Featured will be The Ygnacio Valley High School Jazz Band, winner of the first California High School Jazz Band competition held earlier this yeat in Monterey. The competition was sponsored by the Monterey Jazz Festival in cooperation with Monterey Peninsula College and the National Association of Jazz Educators.

A second band--the twenty-piece, All-Star High School Jazz Band, will alos perform. Members of this band competition. "The band represents the top young musicians of this state," according to Lyons. The All-Star band will spend a week in advance of the Festival rehearsing in Monterey. It will perform compositions by Oliver Nelson; young Salt Lake City arranger, Ladd McIntosh and seasoned jazz guitarist, Mundell Lowe. The three will be on hand to conduct the All-Star band. Additionally trumper star, Clark Terry; drumme Louis Handy will be Brown and the San Francisco-alto saxophonist, John Handy will be featured with the young All-Stars. "We feel that this concept of building a program around these fine young performers in concert with these acknowledged jazz leaders will provide our Monterey audence with one of the most exciting performances the Festival has ever presented," Lyons said.

Rounding out the Sunday afternoon bill the Festival will also present the McMinnville Twilighters, a 20-voice swing choir from McMinnville, Oregon.

Further commenting on the Sunday afternoon program, Lyons said "There is a growing appreciation of jazz among young people today. Our high schools and colleges are seedbeds of new, young talent. These youngsters are the jazz stars of tomorrow. To hear them perform today is a thrilling prospect to anyone who loves the music."

The Monterey Jazz Festival is a non-profit musical endeavor. Its profits after expenses traditionally have gone to music scholarships for young performers and other worthy musical activities.

The First California High School Jazz Band competition which the Festival sponsored earlier this year was the result of months of planning during which time more than 20 regional competitions were held in California to seek out the best young performers. The competition was the first of its kind anywhere in the U.S. Dr. Herb Patnoe, Director of Music, De Anza College, who is also president of the California Chapter of the National Association of Jazz Educators, was chairman of the event which was conceived by Lyons. Judges for the competition were Patnoe, Dr. John Carrico, Director of Music, University of Nevada; Allyn Ferguson, well-known composer and arranger; Joel Leach, Director of Jazz Studies, San Fernando Valley State College and Dr. Herb Wong, educator and jazz broadcaster.

The Ygnacio Valley High School Jazz Band, Concord, Ca., which won the High School competition and will be heard on stage at the Festival, is under the direction of William Burke. Festival general manager Lyons indicated that in addition to performing its own music at Monterey, the band will also perform with guest artist Clark Terry.

The All-Star Band, under direction of Oliver Nelson, will perform the U.S. premiere of Nelson's extended jazz work, "Berlin Dialogue for Jazz Orchestra." John Handy is alos writing a composition to play with the All-Stars.

The Monterey Jazz Festival consists of five concerts in the 7000-seat outdoor arena on the Monterey County Fairgrounds--Frida,, Saturday and Sunday evenings and Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Underway

That's the local slogan for the United Fund campaign this year, James E. Henderson of Carmel, president of the Peninsula Fund chapter, announced recently.

"We are unique among service organizations in that every cent of the money we raise is spent here," Henderson added. "We contribute to 15 Monterey Peninsula agencies and because of this we can honestly say that the United Fund touches almost everyone in the Peninsula."

The Fund supports Boy and Girl Scourts, Campfire Girls, Suicide Prevention Center, Monterey Boys Club, Salvation Army, U.S.O., Handicapped Activities Unlimited, Visiting Nurse Association, Gateway Center and the Alcoholism Council among others.

MathClass

A Modern Mathematics Workshop has been designed to provide parents with a basic knowledge and awareness of modern mathematics, so that parents will be able to assist in the educational achievement of their children.

This is a Community Counseling program sponsored through the auspices of the Division of Adult Community Education, Monterey Peninsula Unified School District.

Any parent interested in participating in the Workshop may call the Counseling Office, 649-7281 for additional information and enrollment.

The class starts Tuesday, September 14, 7-9 p.m. There will be 8 class sessions and each session will last 2 hours.

This workshop will be conducted at the Manzanita Elementary School, Yosemite and Mingo Streets, Seaside, Calif.

Number Attend Conference

Approximately 950 teachers, administrators and educational specialist from Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito Counties, went back to school the last day of August and the first day of September for a two-day conference on latest teaching techniques, trends and instruments.

The Professional Growth Conference, sponsored by the Monterey County Office of Education, was held at Hartnell College in Salinas and attracted a record number of persons from the tri-county area for a variety of sessions on new teaching methods in all fields of instruction.

Those attending the conference also had an opportunity to pour over displays by some 52-firms dealing in educational instruments and materials showing off up-to-the minute developments in devices to assist teachers in the classroom.

The conference was held as a service of the County Office and in response to request by teachers for a program which would keep them abreast of latest educational developments.

Deadline Is Extendded

The United States Department of Agriculture has extended until Sept. 13 the time for filing exceptions to its recommended decision on a proposed marketing order to regulate the handling of lettuce grown in California, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, and part of Texas.

USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service said in a recommended decision July 29 that exceptions would be due by Aug. 24. The 20-day extension was granted to accommodate interested persons who needed extra time to prepare material for filing.

The recommended decision was based on evidence received at a public hearing held at Los Angeles and Albuquerque in March of 1971.

C&MS officials said the proposed program would outhorize regulations limiting the quantity of lettuce to be marketed during specific periods in order to balance supplies with expected demand.

Tomorrow

The first emergency meeting on the Carmel and Monterey Bay oil slicks will be held at the Monterey Peninsula College on Friday evening, September 10 at 8 p.m. in H-1 (Humanities Lounge). Support for this preparedness program is being sought from all official bodies, organizations, clubs and individuals on the Peninsula. All groups are requested to send a representative to the meeting or to call the University for Man at MPC, 375-9821, extension 248, so they may receive information on the program.

Mr. Gilbert Tortolani of the Ecology First Foundation, one of the groups calling the meeting, said that from the experience gained from the San Francisco and San Clementa oil spills, the time to call the first emergency meeting is not when the oil is already on beaches and rocks.

Preparatory work to be planned includes storage of supplies of absorbant materials to soak up oil, oil barriers ready to float to coral spills still at sea and boat owners ready to take the barriers to the spills, knowledge of available oil "vaccuum" to pick up the spills, etc.

"If it happens to us," Mr. Tortolani said, "with our lives and our economy so tied to our natural beauty, it will be a disaster that will bring all the divergent groups on the Peninsula together in sorrow. Let's hope that we can get together before it happens and be prepared to meet it."

Registration Still Open

"Late registration" for fall evening classes at Monterey Peninsula College will be conducted week nights for the next two weeks, except September 9, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the MPC gymnasium, Dr. Keith Merrill has announced.

"In effect, this means that a student may register through the second meeting of a given class, provided that a vacancy exists," Merrill said.

Openings for students exist in certain classes in the areas of administration of justice, anthropology, art, aviation, biology, business, chemistry, data processing, drafting, drama, economics, electronics, engineering, English, ethnic studies, fire science, foreign languages, geography, geology, health, history, hotel-motel-restaurant, journalism, mathematics, medical assisting, music, oceanography, ornamental horticulture, political science, psychology, real estate, recreation, sociology and speech.

Closed classes include those in the areas of home economics, humanities and photography.

Merrill also announced the addition of a new course, sociology 640, the role of women, to be held on Monday nights from 7 to 10 p.m. in B-101.

The last day to register for fall semester day classes at MPC is next Monday, September 13, Dr. John R. Blakemore, MPC dean of instruction, has announced.

Openings are available, Blakemore said, in some technical-vocational classes leading to immediate employment. Among these are data processing, electronics, recreation, dental and medical assisting and police science.

There are also openings in classes in phusical education, English and other "basic subjects."

Late registration procedure for daytime classes includes: (1) applying at the registration desk in the administration building between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. and filling out all necessary forms and (2) signing up for classes and completing registration in the MPC gymnasium between the hours of 9 a.m. and noon or 1 and 3 p.m.

Persons who are legal residents of California and have graduated from high school or are 18 years of age or older and "can profit from education" are eligible for admission to both day and evening programs at MPC. Fully accredited, the college offers work which parallels that offered in the first two years at four-year colleges and universities.

Seaside Ripples

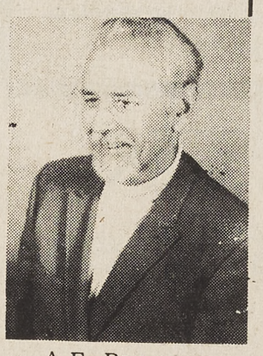
A. E. 'Andy' Barragan, Publisher



A.E. Barragan

The other evening my wife, Jean and I went out to Point Pinos to watch the sunset. We've done this many times, but we arrived too late this night and it was growing dark. We noticed that the waves on the rocks were exceptionally high and that the water was splashing up on the sidewalk at Otter Point.

About this time we noticed a small light, which obviously was a small boat headed toward the open sea at a fast rate of speed. We concluded that it was a small Coast Guard boat that was going out to check on something. We sat in the car with the wind howling outside and watched for some two hours as boat after boat headed past Point Pinos toward safety in Monterey harbor behind the breakweater. We thought that there were a lot of fishing boats out so late at night. And many of those we saw were not the small fishing boats that we are used to seeing from Monterey and Moss Landing. Of course they weren't! They were albacore boats that were being driven in to the safe Monterey Harbor by a storm at sea. We realized this when, on the way home we turned in at Fisherman's Wharf, Number 2 and drove out to the end of the pier. Here we saw dozens of large boats tied up and floating at anchor. Again we realized that these weren't "our boats." They were from San Diego, Newport, Los Angeles and many other ports and were all tied up and at anchor, snugly riding out the storm at sea.

We confirmed this the next day when we saw a photo in the Herald announcing that these boats had pulled in to Monterey Bay for safety

Warning Is Issued

President Sherman Chickering of the California Fish and Game Commission, noting that dove season open Wednesday (Spetember 1), reminded hunters today of the dangers of shooting into orchards, vineyards and fields with bearing crops.

Chickering said that shooting on, above or into posted lands is prohibited under sections of both the Fish and Game and Penal Codes.

Growers, who are particularly concerned about the problem this year, are making a major effort to post their lands prior to the dove season opener.

New Safety Devices Are Approved

Tubs filled with sand, empty steel barrels and water-filled plastic tubes are the latest items approved for use as traffic safety devices for use on California freeways.

Test installations that feature one of the odd trio are being made at locations where out-of-control vehicles could ram headon into a bridge pier sign support or similar fixed object.

In recent years, more people have been killed on California freeways in accidents involving only one car and a fixed object than by any other single cause. The all time high was in 1966 when 240 such fatal mishaps occurred.

Since then, California Division of Highways engineers have made basic changes in freeway design, eliminated many fixed objects and shielded those that must remain in place to reduce the frequency and severity of the single car accident. They have experienced some success and in 1970 -- although freeway travel has increased substantially -- the number of such fatal collisions dropped to 182.

As one phase of the program, the Division's Materials and Research Laboratory began to seek ways of controlling and spending the energy other than through the use of guardrail.

Guardrail is usually adequate when hit at a comparatively flat angle because much of the energy is harmlessly dissipated as the vehicle is deflected. But unfortunately, when a guardrail is hit at a sharp angle or headon a substantial portion of the energy is spent in damaging the vehicle.

The researchers sought to overcome this handicap through devices that serve as cushions between the solid object and moving vehicle. Called impact energy attenuators, they are particularly effective at locations where the deflection qualities of guardrail cannot be fully used.

One type consists of a series of empty steel drums mounted in the same form as a set of bowling pins. The barrels are fastened to each other and when struck, each one must be crushed in sequence.

A somewhat similar system requires the offending car to break down and force its way through a series of plastic tubs filled with sand.

The third requires the vehicle to force water from an assembly of plastic tubes at a controlled rate.

After crash tests with radio-controlled vehicles worthless for other use had proved them to be effective, all three tupes of attenuators were installed at scattered points along the California freeway system.

The first to go into actual use was a group of sand filled tubs located in Los Angeles at the Harbor Freeway's Channel Street off ramp, the tubs suffered only minor damage in the one accident that has occurred there. Engineers were unable to ascertain if the car sustained any damage because the driver did not stop.

Now steps have been taken to collect that information even if the driver doesn't file an accident report. Cameras synchronized to the attenuators will be installed at four locations. If the attenuator is struck the camera will react quickly enough to film both the impact and the aftermath.

Additional research is under way.

Church Services

Man in his true nature always embraced in God's universal family, according to the Lesson-Sermon at Christian Science church services Sunday.

"A father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widowa, is God in his holy habitation. God setteth the solitary in families." This is one of the Bible passages to be read.

The Lesson-Sermon on "Man" also includes this supporting commentary from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is the family name for all ideas, -- the sons and daughters of God. All that God imparts moves in accord with Him, reflecting goodness and power."

An invistation is extended to all by First Church of Christ Scientist to attend services in Monterey brginning at 10:30 a.m.

Seaside Ripples

Jean and I wondered, when we were watching the little boats which were only bobbing lights in the stony darkness, just how they were able to ride out the huge waves that were buffetting them about. At times the lights on their masts would completely disappear behind a huge swell and come bobbing up again.

I was a merchant seaman during the war and rode out many a storm on much larger ships and I know how mean that old ocean can get. Many people think that the storms on the North Atlantic are severe, but the worst storms I have ever been in have been out of San Francisco and San Pedro, which is south of Los Angeles. In both of those storms, the swells and waves were so big that they destroyed our lifeboats that were lashed up on the boat deck which is a good 30 feet above the water line. So you can imagine how high those breakers were to reach up and destroy both lifeboats.

I thought of this as I watched those little fishing boats racing out the storm toward a snug harbor and gave a silent prayer that they would all make it. Thank God, most of them made it. Nature is strong and wonderful, but so is man.

As I mused over the relationship of man and nature, I was reminded of a chapter in Kahlil Gibran's book, "The Voive of the Master" entitled Nature and Man. I thought I would share it with you and let you draw your own conclusions:

"At daybreak I sat in a field, holding converse with Nature, while Man rested peacefully under coverlets of slumber. I lay in the green grass and meditated upon these questions," Is truth Beauty? Is Beauty Truth?

"And in my thoughts I found myself carried far from mankind, and my imagination lifted the veil of matter that hid my inner self. My soul expanded and I was brought closer to Nature and her secrets and my ears were opened to the language of her wonders.

"As I sat thus in thought, I felt a breeze passing through the branches of the trees, and I heard a sighing like that of a strayed orphan.

"Why do you sigh, gentle breeze?' I asked.

"And the breeze replied, Because I have come from the city that is aglow with the heat of the sun, and the seeds of plagues and contaminations cling to my pure garments. Can you blame me for greiving?'

"Then I looked at the tear-stained faces of the flowers, and I heard their soft lament. And I asked, 'Why do you weep, my lovely flowers?'

"One of the flowers raised her gentle head and whispered, 'We weep because Man will come and cut us down, and offer us for sale in the markets of the city.'

"And another flower added, 'In the evening, when we are wilted, he will throw us in the refuse heap. We weep because the cruel hand of Man snatches us from our native haunts.'

"And I heard the brook lamenting like a widow mourning her dead child and I asked, 'Why do you weep, my pure brook?'

"And the brook replied, 'Because I am compelled to go to the city where Man condemns me and spurns me for stronger drink and makes me a scavenger for his offal, polutes my purity, and turns my goodness to filth.'

"And I heard the birds greiving, and I asked, 'Why do you cry my beautiful birds?' and one of them flew near and perched at the tip of a branch and said, 'The sons of Adam will soon come into this field with their deadly weapons and make war upon us as if we were their mortal enemies. We are not taking leave of one another, for we know not which of us will escape the wrath of Man. Death follows us whever we go.'

"Now the sun rose from behind the mountain peaks, and gilded the treetops with coronals. I looked upon this beauty and asked myself, "Why must Man destroy what Nature has built.'"

As I See It

By Mel Vercoe

Now that I am running for a political office (opposing Burt Talcott in the 12th Congressional District) I probably should not probably won't start being very careful about what I werite in this column. After several minutes of careful deliberation on the matter a few days ago I decided the strain of normal diplomatic protocol would not be in the best interests of either myself or the voters I hope to represent.

First of all, I believe an employee, whether a clerk in a store or an elected public official, should be as honest and forthright as humanly possible with his employers. I think it is completely wrong, for example, for a senator or congressman to imply one thing in public statements and then vote just the opposite in Washington, D.C.

Secondly, I don't think a person in such a position of trust should make use of time-worn "Mothers-and-apple-pie" smoke screens to cloud real issues.

Thirdly, I personally have second thoughts about people who avoid discussing debatable points rather than have people find out they either do not have a leg to stand on or are sufficiently ignorant of the subject that it must be avoided at all costs.

There are so many issues demanding attention today that no one could possibly express his views on many of them without rubbing somebody's fur the wrong way, and at one have expressed some sort of an opinion, sometimes in jest, on almost every imaginable topic. I am well paid for it, not in money but in the satisfaction of knowing that whether or not anybody agreed with me, at least I got some of them to look away from their TV sets long enought to think about the issues I have brought up, and hopefully a few more people will become interested enough about what is going on in the world to exercise their right to vote in elections, and maybe in some small way our people and our country woll be better off for it.

In last week's column I wrote to Mao Tse Tung. (He will have to wait a long time for his copy of it.) Among other things I suggested his country should avoid using our electoral college system for electing leaders. This was a vehicle I used in order to criticize the outmoded and undemocratic mthod we use in selecting our Presidents. If Mao Tse Tung were to answer my letter, it might go something like this:

Hon. Mel Vercoe, Capitalist U.S.A.,

Thank you for Hon. suggestion. However, we notice you have already given serious consideration to election method used so successfully by Hon. Russians, our neighbors to the west. Hon. Russians, as you know, save a great deal of campaign expense by having just on candidate for each job, which makes for very smooth operation, even smoother than Republican and Democratic conventions in America.

So, it was with interest we read of new system being tried out in South Vietnam, where your long and hon. struggle for democratic processes has resulted in much savings in campaign funds by having just one candidate in Presidential race, the fellow who is already President.

Was noticing in Hon. history book, however, that this is not really new method. Many Kings in old days would stay in power until they finally died, and then Hon. Number i son would take over.

As always, Mao Tse Tung But, again, be of good cheer. In general, people get just about what they deserve. Have you registered to vote?

Bob Wood Reports

I'm sure most of you read in your local papers the decision by the State Supreme Court that the present property tax method of financing of schools is unconstitutional because it discriminates against the poor districts. They did not say what method we should use. They have left that up to the Legislature. I think most of us will agree, (in our own hearts) whether we live in a wealthy district with a high assessed valuation or a poor district with a low assessed valuation that it is unfair when a property taxpayer in a wealthy district can pay a low tax to provide a good education and a person in a poor district must pay a much higher tax rate to provide an education equally as good.

The problem is what kind of a taxing method should we use. It has proven nearly impossible to get agreement among the more than 1,000 school districts in California over what alternative school finance plan should be adopted. Many of those I've talked to in Monterey County seem to favor an increased sales tax to offset part of the education cost. The important thing is that almost everyone agrees that we should get rid of the property tax as the principal source of income for our schools.

However, there is one thing we should remember and be cautious of: many times outside money means outside control.

I think most of ous would agree that we must find a system to finance our schools that can still leave the decision-making power in the hands of the local districts.

While everyone has agreed that our present system was not very good, we haven't been able to agree on another plan. This court decision will probably force the Legislature to face the issue and put financing education on a sounder footing.

New Display At City Hall

In September the Seaside Art Commission is exhibiting ink drawings by Jean Hofsas with Ann Berthoin's enamels and palettography by Gene Falk in the display cases.

Jean Hofsas majored in art at the University of Washington. After graduation she continued her studies in Seattle and Honolulu, where she is a member of the Honolulu Art Association and the Honolulu Watercolor and Serigraph Society. Jean now makes her home in Pacific Grove and is a member and co-owner of the Valley Hills Gallery. Her work has been in many juried shows. She was awarded second prize for graphics at the 1970 Monterey County Fair. In this show she has used basic technique and tools to express her love of nature. Most of the drawings, animals, birds, trees and local historical buildings, are black and white done with India ink and a bamboo pen.

Ann Berthoin has been fascinated by enamels since her college days at Smith. While living in France she learned the art of ceramics and became well known for her rich glazes and large overall patterned tables. She had one-man shows of her work in ceramics, painting and tapestry in both France and England. It was not until Ann came to California six years age that she learned enameling. Her work has met with great success on the Peninsula as well as in galleries in Texas, Florida and New York.

Gene Falk was a studio and government photographer for ten years, two of which were spent on Governor Rockefeller's staff, before coming to California. He is now the motion picture producer for the U. S. Army at Fort Ord. Five years ago Mr. Falk began palettography. His method, an offshoot of the McConald process, transfers photographs onto burlap. The resulting maintains a permanent gallery at the Pacific Grove Art Center and has show space in Los Angeles, New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

This exhibit at the Seaside City Hall is open from 8 until 5 Monday through Friday.

Dividend

United California Bank's Board of Directors has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 60 cents per share payable September 29 to shareholders of record September 7.

Allocations Are Made

The complex federal bureaucracy sprang to life here last week, as the U.S. Department of Labor approved start-up applications and issued initial funding grants for the Public Employment Program (PEP).

Announcement of disbursements totaling $10,595,457 to 21 local jurisdictions within a week of the guidelines issuance was made today, by Edward Aguirre, Labor department regional manpower administrator.

"We have kept the paperwork to a minimum", Aguirre said, "and those eligible for the funds are working overtime to put plans into action."

The 21 approved plans call for approximately 1900 jobs to be filled during the month of September. PEP is expected to generate approximately 14,000 jobs in California; Arizona anticipates 380, Nevada 260, and Hawaii 230 during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1972. Nationally, 150,000 jobs will be funded under the Emergency Employment Act.

Start-up grants to the remaining 57 program agents in the far-west region will be signed by Labor Day, Auirre said. First-year funding for the four states is $ 06,640,000 with California receiving the lion's share of $100,450,000.

Of the $1 Billion appropriated for this fiscal year, $600 million has been allocated to 700 cities, counties and states with an additional $250 million destined for special programs to aid communities with more than 6 percent unemployment. $150 million has been reserved for special needs as outlined by the Secretary of Labor.

PG&E Has Announced New Project

Pacific Gas and Electric Company today announced it will commit $10 million toward a joint industry-government project for research and development of a demonstartion fast breeder nuclear power plant.

PG&E president Shermer L. Sibley, in announcing the pledge, stressed not only the company's dedication to research for new methods of generating and transmitting electricity but also to research in general. He pointed out that the company has called for bids for a new research center at San Ramon to house its 75-man research staff.

The fast breeder reactor is unique because it produces more nuclear fuel than it consumes in the process of generating electricity. The technique will extend the available energy supply from nuclear fuel for centeries. This will result in lower fuel costs and more efficient use of uranium resources than is possible with present nuclear power plants. Conserving uranium resources is important because, without the breeder, they would be severely depleted about the end of this century.

Sibley noted that small breeder reactors are operating in the United States and abroad today. A larger demonstration plant of about 300,000 kilowatts in size is needed to extend the technology to commercial sizes. He noted that demonstration plants are being constructed in England, France, Germany, Russia and Japan.

The Edison Electric Institute, national association of investor-owned electric companies, had called upon its members to provide financial support for a fast breeder demonstration plant and raise $250 million over a ten year period. To date, three-fourths of this amount has been pledged by utility companies and many other utilities are considering their commitments.

Want Day

The California Fish and Game Commission has called on President Nixon and Goveernor Reagan to proclaim the fourth Saturday of each September Hunting and Fishing Day in the nation and in the state.

Meeting in San Francisco August 19, commissioners commended delegation to Congress to support resolutions calling on the President to declare the national observance.

New Major Is Offered

A new major in liberal studies will be offered this fall at San Jose State College, Dr. Richard Whitlock, Dean of Undergraduate Studies announced today.

The major is interdepartmental and cross-disciplinary, involving the School of Education, the School of Humanities and the Arts and the School of Natural Sciences and Mathematics.

The program will attempt to meet the needs of students who seek a broad general education, Dr. Whitlook explained. "It is a revolutionary kind of degree program which some believe will be the best kind of preparation for elementary teachers."

Four areas of study will make up the course: English (including grammar, literature and composition) and speech-communication; mathematics and physical and biological sciences; social sciences; and humanities and fine arts.

The program, which allows students to plan a program of study suited to the individual needs and goals, is designed to provide a non-professional liberal education that will prepare students through heightened awareness, critical thoughtfulness and broad knowledge for effective living, Dr. Whitlock said. Students graduating in this major will be prepared for many professional programs of study as well as for the teaching profession.

The major was conceived by 21 professors and administrators over the past three years. Dr. Whitl will coordinate the program.

How to warm up a cold pilot.

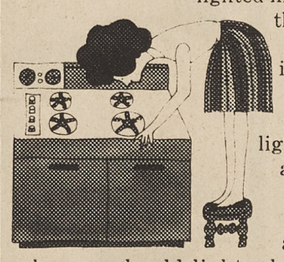
Even the most faithful pilot light can go out. So check your pilot first if one of your gas appliances or furnace isn't operating.

Most gas ranges have more than one pilot. If you're not sure where they're located, consult your owner's manual. (If you need help, call us.) Before relighting a pilot, be sure all burners are turned off. Allow a few minutes for the air to clear, then touch a lighted match to the pilot opening. The pilot should light with a small, blue flame, and the burner should light when you turn it on. If the burner fails to light, call us. We'll send a man out to check it.



Modern gas water heaters and dryers shut off completely if the pilot goes out. And most models bear manufacturer instructions for relighting. If you can't get the appliance operating, call us or the installer.

If the pilot of any gas heater or furnace goes out, TURN OFF THE MAIN BURNER VALVE FIRST. Allow ten or fifteen minutes for any accumulation of gas to clear before relighting pilot (following the instructions on the equipment). With the pilot relighted, the furnace or heater should operate. If it won't, call us.

PILOTS NEEDN'T GO ON VACATION. Some folks prefer to shut off furnaces and water heaters during the summer or vacations. However, it's more convenient to turn off the main burner, but not the pilot. When the pilot is lighted, your furnace is ready to work on a cold day. Most hot water heaters can be turned to "PILOT" when not in use. This keeps the pilot lighted and prevents the main burner from heating water.

WARNING: Never look for a gas leak with a lighted match or candle. If you suspect a gas leak, call PG&E right away and we'll check it.

If you call for a PG&E service man to check out a gas leak or an appliance, have him show you where your pilots are, and how to relight them. If an appliance needs repairs or parts, an appliance man, plumber, or furnace man should be called.

Seaside Fashion Center

"Do your own thing!" is advice offered by Walter R' Norwick, Merchandise Manager of the Mens' and Boys' Department at the MBS Discount Center in Seaside, devoted to mens' fashions. Mr. Norwick, recently returned from a cross-country trip which included a visit to Canada, reports that Californians are actually more fashion-conscious in every-day apparel than men in eastern sections of the country.

Mr. Norwick travels extensively, even alert for fashion changes and development of new techniques in retailing. He is also constantly in search of new fabrics and fashion innovations for the Walter of California line of mens' and boys' wear which is exclusive with MBS. He goes to New York several times a year, often with his buyers, and makes monthly trips to the Los Angeles market and weekly trips to San Francisco. He also attends Boys' Apparel Buyers and National Sportswear Shows in New York and Menswear Retailers of America Conventions, held annually in major cities.

After a thorough apprenticeship in retailing, Norwick became Assistant Merchandise Manager of Lit Brothers of Philadelphia in 1941. Subsequently, he was Divisional Merchandise Manager for a San Francisco Bay Area chain and was buyer for a local department store.

Since 1956, he has been with MBS where he had consistently tried to develop an extraordinarily wide selection in every catagory of mens' and boys' wear.

"I find our customers at MBS to be highly responsive to our efforts to bring them quality fashions at discount prices. And the Monterey Peninsula is one of the most pleasant spots in the world for work, play and bringing up children." Norwick told us with a genial smile, as we finished our tour of his well-stocked fashion departments.

MASTER - Walter R. Norwick - on right, Merchandise Manager of Men's and Boys' department at MBS Discount Department Store, in Seaside, is showing one of latest fashion Sport Coats to customer. Norwick, recently returned from cross-country trip to report to POST on Mens' Fshions. (See story).

AEC Prepares Nuclear Plant Regulations

The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) last Friday commenced the preparation of regulations which would allow it to suspend construction of any nuclear power plant which does not meet its prescribed environmental standards.

The AEC began the process of preparing the regulations after agreement not to appeal a court order requiring the federal agency to take responsibility for regulating the entire environmental impact of nuclear power plants, rather than merely the resulting radiation pollution.

The major pollution from the normal operation of nuclear plants is known as thermal pollution, caused by massive amounts of water being heated to high temperatures in a plant's cooling system.

According to conservation groups and individual environmentalists, the water sharply raises the average temperature of the nearby body of water, resulting in the death of acquatic life.

Absence of Black 'Refs' From College Conference Football Angers Dymally

A recent investigation conducted by Attorney Louis M. Thrasher, who is West Coast Director of the Civil Rights Division of the United States Department of Justice, has disclosed that no Black has ever refereed a college conference football game in California.

In a letter to Senator Mervyn M. Dymally (D, Los Angeles), Thrasher said California athletic conferences have discriminated against Black football officials, particularly at the junior college, state college and Pacific Eight levels of competition.

"The absence of Black referees," he said, "is particularly significant because referees receive the highest pay and the most prestige. Blacks have not been assigned to referee football games above the high school level."

Dymally's comment was:

'Incredible! You can fill a football stadium with the sanctimonious speeches of conference officials on how sports are an equal-opportunity operation. They tell you that ability, not skin-color, is what counts in football. But when they pick their head linesmen and backfield judges, it's back to the old bigotry. The uniforms may be black and white, but the faces are all white."

Athletic conferences investigated by the Justice Department include the Western States Conference, Southern California Conference, Metropolitan Conference, South Coast Conference, Mission Conference, California Collegiate Athletic Association, Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Southern California Athletic Associations, the Pacific Eight, and the Los Angeles City and Southern Sections of the California Interscholastic Federation.

Dymally said he would do all he could to make sure that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) acts

Court Ruling Means More Protection For Debtors

The State Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional a law which allows sellers to use the sheriff to repossess unpaid-for merchandise.

The court also appeared to hint that the state's credit industry may face even further restrictions on the methods it uses to collect debts.

The case came before the Supreme Court when two Los Angeles taxpapers asked the Superior Court to prohibit enforcement of the law. The taxpayers contended the law was unconstitutional because it allowed Los Angeles Sheriff Peter Pitchess to conduct what they said were unreasonable searches and seizueres and because it denied debtors due process of law, depriving them of property without a hearing.

The lower court's order was appealed by the County of Los Angeles, but the county lost its appeal before the state high court. The high court agreed the law violates the Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution which prohibits unreasonable searches and seizures.

"If the sheriff cannot invade the privacy of a home without a warrant when the state interest is to prevent crime, he should not be able to do so to restrieve a stove or refrigerator about which the right to possession is disputed."

Justice Raymond Sullivan added that repossession of items such as household applicances "may as a practical matter drive a wage-earning family to the wall."

Sullivan's opinion relied heavily on a recent United State Supreme Court decision in which the court barred attachment of a debtor's wages without a prior judicial hearing.

Other upcoming test cases may determine whether the State court considers all kinds of property, including bank accounts, as protected against attachment of repossession.

The decision marked a second major limitation on creditors' rights in California. An earlier Appellate Court decision said a landlord has no right to sell the personal property of a tenant who has left without paying his rent.

The State Supreme Court has noted there may be extraordinary situations in which a repossession or an attachment may be justified without prior hearing. But it declared that the California statute does not provide for such circumstances.

Emblem Is Lifesaver

More than 900,000 residents of the Bay Area suffer from hidden medical problems that could prove fatal in an emergency, a spokesman for the Medic Alert Foundation said in San Francisco recently.

His estimate was based on a survey made by the American Medical Association that showed one of every five persons has such a problem.

"These people should wear the Medic Alert bracelet or necklace. In an emergency, it could save their life."

The Reverend George Twigg-Porter, said in a recent address.

Father Twigg-Porter is chaplain of San Francisco Emergency Hospitals and a member of Medic Alert's board of directors.

Medic Alert is a charitable, nonprofit international organization dedicated to educating and encouraging individuals to wear identification in the form of a bracelet or necklace that specifies any medical problems that should be known in an emergency. Among those who should wear such identification, said, are "those with diabetes, epilepsy and heart conditions, or persons who are taking anticoagulants, wearing contact lenses or are allergic to penicillin."

Medic Alert was founded in 1956 by Dr. Marion C. Collins when his own daughter nearly lost her life after receiving a test injection of tetanus anti-toxin to which she was allergic.

Today the Foundation has over 420,00 members, with more than 4,000 new members joining each month.

These members wear a metal with the words "Medic Alert" emblazoned on the face. On the reverse side is engraved the immediate medical problem of the wearer, his or her identification number and the telephone number of the computerized Centeral Answering File, which keeps additional medical information on each member.

The Central File accepts, on a 24-hour basis, collect calls from authorized persons (physicians, emergency hospitals, law enforcement officers) and relays additional information from the file in a matter of seconds.

Medic Alert's services are maintained through a one-time-only membership fee of $7, which includes a bracelet or necklace in stainless steel and one medical problem engraving.

As an additional service, Medic Alert created in 1968 the first world-wide organ transplant information pool.

"This service enables hospitals and physicians to determine immediately whether a dead or dying accident victim desires to donate his heart, kidneys or other organs to help save the life of another," Father Twigg-Porter said.

Information may be obtained directly from Medic Alert, Turlock, CA 95380.

Song Honors Drug Victim

Cindy Ownes, a 20-year-old girl from Phoenix, died of an overdose of "speed" recently. She had successfully "kicked" the habit once, but while in the hospital with a kidney stone, she was given an injection of demerol to ease the pain. It drove Cindy back to drugs and tragedy.

Cindy's father, Jack Owens, a well-known singer and composer, had written a poem about his daughter, inspired by her victory over drugs. He has now set the poem to music.

Owens tried to encourage his daughter to stay away from drugs in his copyrighted song, "Little Butterfly":

"There is still a chance, little butterfly,
Though the flame's getting close to your head
Roll on the ground, little butterfly,
'Cause you won't even run if you're dead."

Appoints Non-Whites

A Black man and a Japanese-American, both veteran corrections officers, have been appointed California's first non-white prison wardens by Governor Ronald Reagan.

The appointment of Bertram S. Griggs, 50 year-old Negro, of Pasadena, as warden of the California Institution for Men at Chino and that of Japanese Jiro J. Enomoto as superintendent of the California Correctional Institution at Tehachapi are subject to State Senate confirmation.

Both started their careers with the State Department of Corrections in 1952 as parole agents. Enomoto is now a deputy superintendent at Soledad Prison while Griggs is administrator of the department's Los Angeles region parole division.

Enomoto of Sacramento will be paid $20,496 at his new post, succeeding George P. Lloyd who retired. A past national president of the Japanese-American Citizens League, Enomoto is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

A graduate of Morehouse College, he has completed graduate study in social work.

Griggs will receive $22,584 in his new job and replaces retiring Elmer J. Oberhauser.

Father's Dream Is Realized

The saga of the Jackson 5, a phenomenally successful singing group, is essentially the fulfillment of one man's dream.

The dream was their father's, musican Joe Jackson, who wanted a large happy family, one that would do things together.

"I wanted a fun group which would stay together and play together," he explained recently. "An old-fashioned family, which was an easier goal in those days."

At that time, about 22 years ago, Joe Jackson was playing guitar with a group called the Falcons. He gave that up to marry a pretty singer and clarinet player, Katherine, and went to work as a crane operator in a steel mill in Gary, Indiana.

"I bought a small house and we started our family," he said.

There first child, Maureen, is now a housewife and mother. She was followed by three boys, Jackie, Toriano and Jermaine, members of the group. "They picked up musical instruments as soon as they were able to walk over to them," Joe related with quiet pride.

Toriano, who likes to be called "Tito," recalled: "My first guitar was a toy with plastic strings. When my father saw I was serious, he got me a box guitar. I took a year to learn how to play that, and then he gave me his electric guitar."

Jermaine, meanwhile, was blossoming as the lead singer of the family group, which then numbered three. Then came Marlon, who danced almost as soon as he walked, and Michael, who at the age of 3 showed potential as another lead singer.

At this point, Joe Jackson began to have his doubts. "I was immensely proud of my family," he said. "I thought they were the most talented bunch around. But I often wondered if I were blinded by fatherly pride."

He wasn't, as the boys' record of success since they were discovered by Diana Ross in 1969 and brought to the attention of Motown Records has proved.

No Saving, Says Brown

State Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, Jr., (D, San Francisco) told newsmen in San Francisco recently that the much-heralded welfare reform bill signed by Governor Ronald Reagan will cost taxpayers $100 million.

"All that business about 'savings' is phony--absolutely, certified, totally phony," said Assemblyman Brown. He said that the governor has "increased the cost of welfare by about $100 million in this state...I don't believe he's being totally candid."

Backers of the compromise bill, signed by Reagan last Friday, predict it will cut welfare spending by $120 million in federal, state and county funds for the remainder of this fiscal year and more than $180 million the next year.

"I don't believe it will cut spending," Brown said.

The welfare bill and a companion Medi-Cal measure have been estimated to save $350 million in federal, state and county money annually.

Brown, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said he voted against the welfare bill because some of his Black colleagues had made it a "symbol" but added he considered the measure a fairly decent piece of legislation.

"I believe it will increase the benefits of welfare recipients and additionally cause people to move off welfare," he said.

Brown's close political allies negotiated the welfare and Medi-Cal compromise with Reagan but Brown doubts they will be as successful on tax reform -- the big issue facing legislators when they return to Sacramento September 7.

"I don't think you can anticipate the same agreement on tax reform because the governor's concept of tax reform is completely different from that of members of the legislature," Brown said. He added that lawmakers will send a bill to Reagan and "let the chips fall where they may."

Brown predicted the legislature will pass a tax increase "in the neighborhood of $500 to $750 million."

Poole Appointed To Group Making Study Of Juvenile Justice

A prominent Black attorney has been appointed to a new national advisory committee making a one-year study of juvenile justice coordinated by the federal Institution of Judicial Administration.

He is Cecil Poole, former United States Attorney in San Francisco. Prior to that post, he was clemency secretary to former Governor of California Edmund G. Brown.

Poole is now associated with the San Francisco law firm of Jacobs, Sills and Coblentz at 555 California Street. He resides in San Francisco.

Others on the 27-member committee include Nicholas Katzenbach, former United States Attorney General and now general counsel for the IBM Corporation, and Allen Breed, director of the California Youth Authority.

The committee is to study ways to develop national standards of justice for those under 18 years old. It will be financed by a $164,341 grant from the National Institute of Law Endorcement and Criminal Justice.

A spokesman for the Institute said that the purpose of the committee is to encourage significant reforms in court proceedings as well as such important related areas as police and correctional practices.

The committee will study the selection and training of judges and other criminal justice personnel, the role of prosecutors and defense attorneys, probation and parole procedures, diversion of cases for nonjudicial treatment and correctional programs.

Poole is now serving as chairman of the American Bar Association's section on individual rights.

Arts May Be Best Unifier

African states and Black people in the United States can move closer together through the arts, according to Albert Ferral, director of cultural affairs and an official in the Ministry of Youth in Niger, a small African country near Nigeria.

Ferral made the statement while in conversation at the Free Southern Theater (FST) of New Orleans with Bayo Oduneye, a Nigerian actor and director. Oduneye is a Black Theater Workshop instructor at the FST, a touring theater based in New Orleans.

Ferral does not feel that either politics or economics is the best method to achieve unity among the Black peoples of the world. He felt that African states inside Africa could come closer together among themselves and that Black people in America could move closer through the arts.

The African statesman made the visit to the FST as part of a tour of the United States in which he was to visit several Black theater groups.

In keeping with his view of unity through the arts, Ferral expressed the hope that his theater in Niger would be able to bring FST to his country in the near future.

He also said that he hoped to send costumes and artifacts back from Niger to the FST to help the New Orleans theater in its storefrong theater complex.

Biography Of Ali Coming

By Kagi

New York publishers Abelar Schumann Ltd. are rushing into print Jose Torres' unauthorized biography of Muhammad Ali, titled "Sting Like a Bee."

A close friend of Ali, the former light heavyweight champion is reported to have gotten inside Ali's skin on this book, conveying with fine perception what goes on in the ring and in the fighter's mind.

In the book, he gives a blow-by-blow analysis of each of Ali's major fights. Ali's early career, his adoption of the Muslim faith, his style compared with that of previous heavyweight champions and his special charisma are all examined by Torres. The fighter turned writer also predicts what may lie ahead for Ali.

A preface to the book has been written by Norman Mailer, perhaps the nation's number one prizefight buff. "I never knew there was that much to boxing," says Mailer.

The book, due out on October 15, will have an epilogue by Budd Schulberg. Bert Sugar, publisher of "Boxing Illustrated," has contributed background material and LeRoy Neiman has illustrated the book with his powerful drawings.

Why Black Musicians Live Abroad

Pianist Sylvia Olden Lee, who accompanied bass-baritone George Goodman in his concert in the Hearst Greek Theatre at UC-Berkeley on Sunday, July 11, has explained why she, Goodman and the featured composer in the concert --Robert Owens of Berkeley-- are all Black Americans who have lived in Europe for the last ten years.

She said that one of the reasons was the popularity of concert recitals and of music in general in Munich, Germany, where Goodman and Owens now live, and in Sweden, where Mrs. Lee lives with her husband, symphony conductor Everett Lee.

"The concert recital isn't too well received in this country," she said. But in Munich, "people go to work with their good shoes in a paper bag. And they go to the opera right after work. These Germans go!" In Munich, she continued, there are three opera houses, three huge concert halls, five symphony orchestras, 12 legitimate theatres, in addition to numerous small recital halls, jazz clubs and places for rock groups. "And they are all sold out."

The Swedish, too, are highly musical and appreciative." Everett Lee, is invited to conduct all over, as well as conducting his own orchestra in Norrkoping. Although Lee has conducted here--his last was "Don Pasquale" this spring -- there is "nothing like that in this country." In 1951, he was told by a leading impresario in New York that "he just didn't have a chance here since he was Black."

She said that being Black has also been a hindrance to George Goodman's career. "He could do four or five operatic roles, besides the lead in 'Porgy and Bess,' which he has performed in German over 200 times. But no other Black American man, besides Larry Winters, has had a contract with a European opera house. On both sides of the ocean, they are not as ready to give contracts to Black men."

"George Goodman," she said, "would like to live here. But he's not sure that he could have a full professional life. It's hard to break through here. But he's not sure that he could have a full professional life. It's hard to break through here. But in Germany, he lives beautifully."

Goodman was the first solo performer in the series of Sunday Afternoon Promenade Concerts in the Greek Theatre.
